

MARCH 2008 FEAST DAYS

Monday, March 3 — St. Katherine Drexel

Philadelphia heiress and foundress of the Missionary Sisters of the Blessed Sacrament, St. Katherine Drexel endured much harassment because of her work with Native Americans and African Americans. She established some 49 institutions, including Xavier University in New Orleans. She died in 1955 at the age of 97 and was canonized in October 2000.

Saturday, March 15 — St. Joseph

This feast dates to the end of the tenth century. In 1870, Pope Pius IX declared St. Joseph the patron of the Universal Church. Monday, March 17 — St. Patrick

Patrick's 30 years as a wandering bishop in Ireland are wrapped in legend, but the scope of his achievements is a matter of historical record. Within 10 years he had established the primatial see of Armagh and a network of churches and monasteries throughout the country, all in the hands of native clergy. He personally baptized tens of thousands of the faithful and ordained hundreds of priests. Although he was not alone in his work of evangelization, his stature as patron of Ireland is well deserved.

Sunday, March 23 — Easter Sunday

Let us celebrate the holiest day of the liturgical calendar!

Monday, March 24 — Anniversary of the death of Oscar Romero

This Archbishop of San Salvador is renowned as the outstanding embodiment of the prophetic church, a voice for the voiceless. No one could foresee that he would be denounced by his fellow bishops, earn the hatred of the rich and powerful of El Salvador, and generate such enmity that he would be targeted for assassination—the first bishop slain at the altar since Thomas Becket in the twelfth century. He was killed on March 24, 1980, and was immediately acclaimed by the people of El Salvador, and by the poor throughout Latin America, as a true martyr and saint.

Sunday, March 30 — Divine Mercy Sunday, Second Sunday of Easter

In 2000, the Congregation for Divine Worship decreed that “throughout the world, the Second Sunday of Easter will receive the name Divine Mercy Sunday, a perennial invitation to the Christian world to face, with confidence in divine benevolence, the difficulties and trials that humankind will experience in the years to come.”

Sunday, March 30 — Anniversary of the death of Sr. Thea Bowman

This day is the anniversary of the death in 1990 of Sister Thea Bowman, a Franciscan Sister who managed — in her manifold witness to the Gospel — to integrate the resources of her Catholic faith with her identity as an African-American woman. She was a particular inspiration to the black Catholic community, helping them to assert their pride of place among the People of God, while also encouraging them to enrich the wider church with the gifts of their distinctive culture and spirituality.

Monday, March 31 — Solemnity of the Annunciation of the Lord

The feast of the Annunciation is one of the most important in the Church calendar. It celebrates the incarnation of Jesus made flesh in the womb of His mother, Mary. The biblical account of it is in the first chapter of the Gospel of Saint Luke. Saint Luke describes the annunciation given by the angel Gabriel to Mary that she was to become the mother of the Incarnation of God. Here is recorded the “angelic salutation” of Gabriel to Mary, “Hail, full of grace, the Lord is with thee” and Mary’s response to God’s will, “Let it be done to me according to thy word.”
